

pay me

Mencap have gone to court to demand that the government overturns its recent ruling on pay for sleeping shifts. Because of Mencap, millions of low-paid workers will now be denied the minimum wage for their sleep shifts.

Mencap say that the care sector can't afford to pay its staff the minimum wage. We say that austerity is not the fault of the workers. We recognise that there is a funding deficit in social care, but employers should not be plugging the gaps from their workers' wages. And despite crying poverty, Mencap themselves made record profits this year. Don't make us pay!

We want a noisy, lively demonstration in Bristol. We want to send a message to Mencap: the working class are not powerless. We will not give up our pay without a fight.

Join us on College Green at 12:00 on October 27th. Bring banners, horns, drums, and anything else to make noise with!
